David Gossage / Staff Photographer Video Caption Published 12:00 am EDT, Thursday, September 3, 2012 SPRINGFIELD -- Illinois is the only state in the nation that has no stop signs in rural areas. That's why Springfield City Councilman Clark Carter thinks the state Legislature should pass a bill making "a one-and-a-half-point turn to the left" mandatory in rural areas. That, of course, would require the state to spend money. But in a phone interview Tuesday, Carter, who represents parts of Macoupin and Sangamon counties, said the safety of the public would be improved if towns adopted the so-called "turn anyplace" law, which would also be easier on state and local law enforcement. "The state just doesn't have the resources to put in the stop signs," he said. "The state has been able to put in stop signs in rural areas, but they haven't been able to put in a median strip, so they put (turn) signs there," referring to Illinois' lack of rural stop signs. Carter has drafted a proposed bill that would require towns to install stop signs and provide turn-left-on-red signs at designated intersections in rural areas, except on farms, interstate highways and other major roads. If a town can't afford to do so, it could get federal funds, he said. "These changes would not cost the state a penny, but would save lives, and nobody is going to get hurt if you take away a stop sign from every intersection. The only place you're going to get hurt is if you're not paying attention," he said. Supporters of a law including the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign and perhaps Democratic Gov. Pat Quinn's administration, which would have to approve the plan, likely won't be sympathetic with Carter's

Reviews of ActivePrez PowerPoint Addin ActivePrez (formerly Active Presentation Designer) is a popular and interesting piece of software that aims to improve your presentations by making them a lot more interactive with the help of menu bars. ActivePrez is a useful and interesting piece of software that aims to improve your PowerPoint presentations by making them a lot more interactive with the help of menu bars. It may seem like a basic concept, but PowerPoint struggles a bit when it comes to working with large number of slides, because it lacks an efficient nonlinear method of navigation between slides. In a few words, ActivePrez is here to improve your overall experience by providing you with a fast solution to jump to preferred slides, regardless of their number, with just a few mouse clicks. Considering Microsoft Office is already installed on your computer, the addin is smoothly integrated with PowerPoint's ribbon toolbar, more specifically, in the Insert tab. From there, you can access various number of menu styles, link paths to slides and create a form of nonlinear navigation that intertwines your slides. Comes with many customization options for your menu bars By far the most powerful feature is the Menu Wizard that takes you step by step and saves you a lot of time in creating the basic structure for the interactive menus. Despite what you might initially think, ActivePrez is actually a very versatile and capable addin as it enables you to get really creative when it comes to menu bars. You can customize elements such as fonts, sizes, colors, attributes, effects for your menu item texts, as well as height and width for your menu bars, for menu item separators and for menu show and hide buttons. The addin also enables you to link slides, custom shows, and URLs or local files to your menu bars. Navigate with ease within numerous PowerPoint slides As 09e8f5149f
